My Funeral Wishes

Make your wishes known

If you do just one thing...

“In 1995, my father, Bill Wathall, passed away aged just 62. He had spent over 40 years as a funeral director, advising families about their loved ones funeral, and giving hundreds of talks to local groups suggesting that the best thing to do was to ‘make your funeral wishes known’.

When he died, my family discovered that the subject of his funeral had not been discussed with any of us, even after working alongside him for over 10 years. We all assumed that someone else had all the information.

This made an already tragic situation even worse. We had to establish what he would have wanted, whilst still mourning his loss too. If I can offer just a single piece of advice, based not only on personal experience, but also on the many times we’ve had similar situations with the families we help, it would be to make your funeral wishes known now, for the benefit of your family and friends and your own peace of mind.

Please, use this booklet to express your wishes and tell someone where you’ll keep it.”

My Funeral Wishes

By planning ahead and using this booklet to help, you'll save your next of kin and loved ones the stress of trying to second-guess what you would have wanted.

This booklet will help you to guide your loved ones in the organisation of your funeral, ensuring it reflects what is important to you and your family. They'll find great comfort in knowing your funeral is carried out the way you would like.

A funeral is an occasion for your family and friends to express their grief and celebrate your life, so fill in as much of the booklet as you feel able to.

How to Use This Booklet

We have designed this booklet to help you think about the kinds of things you might consider when making personal choices. Simply fill in your details and write down your wishes.

When you are happy:

- Tell someone close to you about this booklet
- Tell them where you keep the booklet
- You may want to pass the details onto your solicitor
- You can post your booklet to any of our branches for safe keeping

If you are unsure about any of your wishes, you can change or add to them at any time. If you've posted your wishes to us, simply telephone us and we will be more than happy to amend them for you.
